

London: World City at London Transport Museum

To celebrate the 2012 Cultural Olympiad London Transport Museum is working with different people in the Capital to collect your stories about objects from the Museum's collection to understand what they mean to you.

We're keen to explore transport in London from a global perspective and are looking for French people living in London to take part in a 6 week project. We'll be meeting weekly to develop a creative project together that represents your journeys and experiences. From film making to photography, arts and crafts to podcasting - what we do is up to you and your interests! The end results will be added to the Museum's permanent collection and may be displayed in the Museum galleries too.

It's a great chance to do something a bit different, meet new people, practice your English and have some fun at the same time. We'll be hosting a tour and introductory session on Wednesday July 7th from 11am to 1pm at the Museum. If you're interested in taking part or would like more information please contact Jane Findlay on 02075657424 or email jane.findlay@ltmuseum.co.uk
